Update: After oral arguments on March 10-11, a decision is expected in this case by the end of 2021. The Center for Reproductive Rights and its local partner in El Salvador, the Colectiva Feminista para el Desarrollo Local and the Agrupación Ciudadana por la Despenalización del Aborto, will be presenting oral arguments before the Inter-American Court of Human Rights on March 10 and 11 in Manuela v. El Salvador. The case centers around a Salvadoran woman, Manuela, who in 2008 was unjustly sentenced to 30 years in prison for aggravated homicide after suffering an obstetric emergency that resulted in her pregnancy loss. Manuela died imprisoned two years later from cancer, after receiving inadequate medical diagnosis and treatment. The March 10 and 11 oral arguments in the case will be broadcast live in Spanish and English at 8:00 am [San José – San Salvador]/9:00 am [New York—Bogotá]. El Salvador has a total ban on abortion and imposes harsh criminal penalties on both women and physicians. The country’s abortion ban has resulted in the unjust imprisonment of countless women who have suffered pregnancy-related complications and miscarriages and have been charged with having an abortion and convicted of homicide. “Manuela was the victim of a State that does not protect the life and health of women, that discriminates and criminalizes them for having natural complications of pregnancy and does not provide guarantees to protect the confidentiality between medical staff and patients,” said Catalina Martínez Coral, regional director for Latin America and the Caribbean at the Center for Reproductive Rights. “We want El Salvador to assume the international responsibility it has evaded for years despite the repeated calls from multiple human rights organizations to review the legislation that causes this unjust criminalization of women.” The case was brought in 2012 by the Center and the Colectiva Feminista on behalf of Manuela’s family. In 2019, the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights (IACHR) advanced the case to the Inter-American Court of Human Rights, contending that the Salvadoran State had violated several of Manuela’s human rights, including the right to life, health, judicial protections and guarantees, and freedom from discrimination and gender-based violence. The Inter-American Court of Human Rights is part of the Organization of American States (OAS), which serves to uphold and promote basic rights and freedoms in the Americas. Decision Could Have Wide Impact in Latin America and the Caribbean The case seeks reparations for Manuela’s family and sanctions against El Salvador for its incapacity to comply with international obligations to guarantee women’s reproductive rights. It will also create an opportunity for the Court to create standards for all States within the Inter-American System on Human Rights to guarantee the right to life, and the right to health of women, including those imprisoned, as well as standards on how to conduct investigations and fair trials in these circumstances. The Inter-American Court of Human Rights is the highest judicial body for human rights in the Americas and its rulings have far-reaching impact in Latin America and the Caribbean. The Court’s rulings, based on the American Convention on Human Rights, have been understood as binding to all of the States under its jurisdiction, and have been traditionally used as a binding interpretation by the Inter-American Commission of Human Rights when ruling on cases and elaborating reports on the whole Americas region, under the OAS Charter. Manuela Received Inadequate Care After Manuela arrived at the hospital, the staff failed to provide her with timely treatment and instead subjected her to verbal abuse and accused her of having an abortion. She was then arrested by the police, who shackled her to the stretcher and interrogated her without the presence of a lawyer. Manuela was convicted of aggravated homicide and unfairly sentenced to 30 years in prison. In 2010, during her imprisonment, she died, leaving her two children orphaned. Her death was due to Hodgkin’s lymphoma, which the State failed to properly diagnose and treat. Watch the arguments online: Oral argument in Manuela v. As long as you can handle a more conventional television experience with periodic commercials, these services — which are often viewable on Roku, Amazon Fire and other streaming devices that can be plugged into your TV — offer a free and convenient way to watch your favorite shows. There are plenty of apps and websites out there that you can use to legally watch shows and movies of all kinds online. From the latest episodes of The Daily Show to your favorite 90s series, the television you want to see is out there, and it doesn’t have to cost a dime. Social Media While it’s true that you can watch videos posted by friends and family on social media sites, you’re missing out on a whole world of entertainment if you think that cat videos posted by your friends are all that’s out there (delightful though they may be). Facebook, for instance, has quietly gotten into the streaming game, and it’s home to a surprisingly broad range of content. In addition to new series, such as Humans of New York, you can also watch some shows that originally premiered elsewhere, including Buffy the Vampire Slayer. You can find some full-episode series by clicking on the Shows button on the left hand menu of the Facebook website, but you’ll have an easier time viewing Facebook’s full television catalogue through Facebook Watch, an app available for Android, iOS, Amazon Fire and Windows devices. Photo Courtesy: Getty Images Similarly, although YouTube may be more famous for videos of amateur artists, performers and commentators, it also has a sizable amount of professional content you can access as well. More recent movies and shows tend to require a rental fee, but others, such as The King’s Speech, The Terminator, Mean Girls and more are all free to watch with ads. Just because you don’t have cable or satellite TV doesn’t mean that you can’t watch the shows on them. Many streaming sites host content from the big cable channels, but even if you don’t have a Netflix or Hulu subscription, you can often watch cable shows for free on the websites or apps of the channels that produced them. Comedy Central, for instance, hosts the latest episodes of many of its series at cc.com, including The Daily Show With Trevor Noah. Similarly, FX offers a selection of recent episodes from some of its shows, such as Archer, on its website. You can also sometimes find episodes of your favorite shows by visiting their websites directly. One such example is the popular adult cartoon Rick and Morty, which can be watched at rickandmorty.com. Photo Courtesy: Brad Barket/Getty Images If you’re more interested in the shows on your local television channels, you should check the website of your local news stations, such as PBS or any news channels in your area. While there’s no guarantee, many local channels host special programming and recordings of local events online. Ad-Supported Streaming Services Those who don’t want to pay for access to network TV at all still have a few options to consider. Hulu offers some network shows for free, although you gain access to vastly more content by paying for a subscription. Additionally, Crackle and Tubi TV offer free access to network television shows, both in the U.S. and abroad. Viewers have to sit through ad breaks, but that’s true for watching regular television as well. Photo Courtesy: Jason LaVeris/Getty Images Crackle is one such service to consider. With a mix of more familiar titles, such as Unsolved Mysteries and 3rd Rock From the Sun, as well as new series, like Snatch, Crackle provides a surprisingly diverse range of offerings for viewers to choose from. If you can’t find your favorite show there, however, there’s no shortage of other ad-supported free streaming services to choose from. Others that are worth your consideration include Tubi TV, VUDU, Crunchyroll (for anime fans), Plex, FilmRise, Pluto TV and more. MORE FROM QUESTIONSANSWERED.NET The Inter-American Commission on Human Rights (IACHR) is an organ of the Organization of American States (OAS), set up with the aim to promote and protect human rights in the American hemisphere. on the basis of the American Convention on Human Rights. The Commission is composed of seven independent members who act in their personal capacity. Their role is to fulfill the mandate of IACHR, which includes, among others: investigating individual petitions in which violations of human rights are alleged to have been committed by a member state of the OAS; observing the general situation of human rights in the OAS member states and publishing related reports; contributing to raising awareness of human rights among individuals, governments, academic institutions and civil society organisations, through the preparation and publication of reports on specific issues, and the organisation of visits, lectures, seminars and other meetings; recommends to the OAS member states the measures they should take the better to protect human rights; presenting cases to the Inter-American Court and appearing before the Court during the processing and consideration of cases; and receiving and examining communications in which a state alleges that another state has committed a violation of a human right protected under the American Convention. Throughout its work, the Commission, either in full or through the appointed special rapporteurs, looks into issues related to the applicability of human rights in the digital environment, such as: freedom of expression, privacy and data protection, access to information, etc. For example, the Special Rapporteur for Freedom of Expression published, in 2013, a report on freedom of expression and the Internet.
